How the Unicorn Lost His Horn: and other stories Kate Lattey

A collection of whimsical pony-related short stories, ideal for bedtime reading.

Stories included in this volume:

How the Unicorn Lost His Horn - Diamond Dust is a magical but lonely unicorn who discovers the most precious thing in the world - the unconditional love of a little girl.

Be Careful What You Wish For - a young girl is given magical crayons that will bring her drawing of her heart's desire to life - but her artistic ability leaves a lot to be desired!

"The Magic Pony" - an abandoned pony is adopted by a witch who is not as wicked as she seems.

"The (Slightly) Epic Saga of Buffalo Bill" - tells the story of a starving young Connemara pony who dreams of a better life on a ranch in America.

"Alice the Camel" - Alice knows she is the prettiest pony on the farm, but when she overhears her rider saying she's a camel, she decides to find out exactly what that means.

"How Sweetpea Got Her Spots" - Alice's jealousy over Sweetpea's distinctive spots lead her to try increasingly silly ways to get spots of her very own.

"I Do Believe in Fairies" - Nobody believes Quint when she says she sees fairies in the pasture, but when she finally has a conversation with one, she learns an incredible truth.

"Summer is on its way" - Alice interviews the other horses on the farm about their anticipation of the coming summer.

"Such Stuff as Dreams are Made On" - the Horse Gods up in the heavens decide to create a perfect horse, but will anyone on earth truly appreciate and understand her?

These stories are all written about real horses who live on a farm in New Hampshire, and were penned for the benefit of the girls who spend their summers there. Short descriptions of the real horses are provided at the beginning of each story, some of which are more whimsical than others, but all of which share a common love for horses and their distinct personalities.
